

STEP 1 OF 11

Your exam, one calm day at a time

- Lakshyam plans your day, picks what to practise, and brings back what you forget.
- You only need about 2 minutes each morning and 3 minutes each night to steer it.
- Swipe through these steps once. Come back any time from Settings.

💡 Tip: Swipe left, or tap Next.

STEP 2 OF 11

The daily loop

- Plan: your timetable says what to study and when.
- Practise: short tests on that topic, right after studying it.
- Review: your mistakes come back on their own until you know them.
- Reflect: one emoji and one line at night. Repeat tomorrow.

> 💡 Tip: Small and daily beats long and rare.

STEP 3 OF 11

Set up once (10 minutes)

- 1 · Bring in your papers: import, or Library → Papers → Add paper (with “Copy instructions for AI”).
- 2 · Add your exam dates: Today → Set your exam date (up to 20 exams).
- 3 · Make a timetable: Progress → My timetable. Let AI draft it, then check and approve.
- 4 · Connect Google Drive backup, and pick a theme and text size you like.

> 💡 Tip: The Paper theme makes questions easiest to read for long sessions.

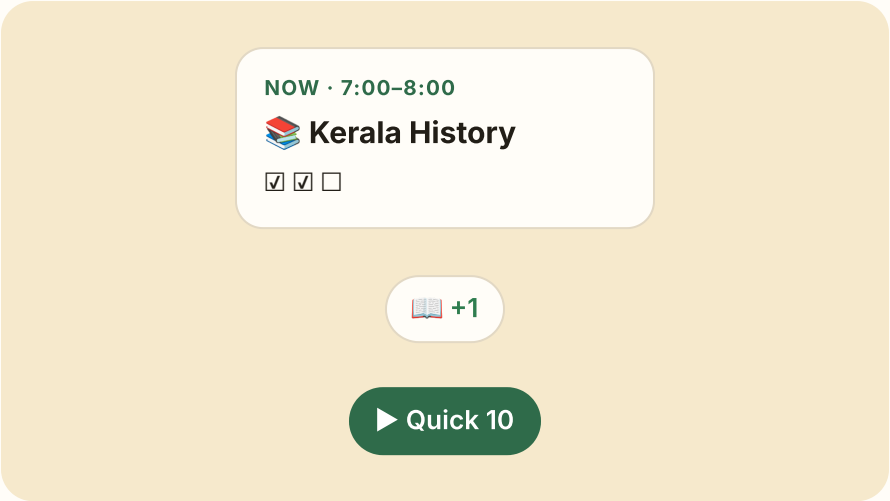

STEP 4 OF 11

Every morning: one tap (2 minutes)

- Open Today. Look at the countdown: it keeps you serious.
- Tap ▶ Today's session. It mixes your mistakes that are due with today's topic.
- Do it before anything else, while your mind is fresh.

> 💡 Tip: No time today? Even one session keeps your streak and your memory alive.

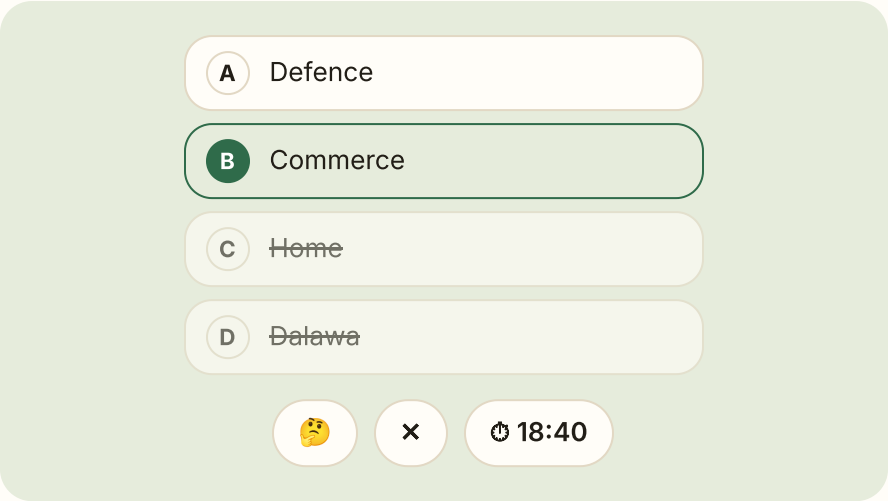

STEP 5 OF 11

Study blocks: learn, then test at once

- The timetable's "Now" card on Today shows the block and topics.
- Study from your notes or Study PDFs (AI can make questions and flashcards from them).
- Tick the topics you finished, or tap 📖 Studied +1.
- Then tap ▶ Quick 10 on that topic straight away.

> 💡 Tip: Testing yourself right after reading makes it stick far better than reading it again.

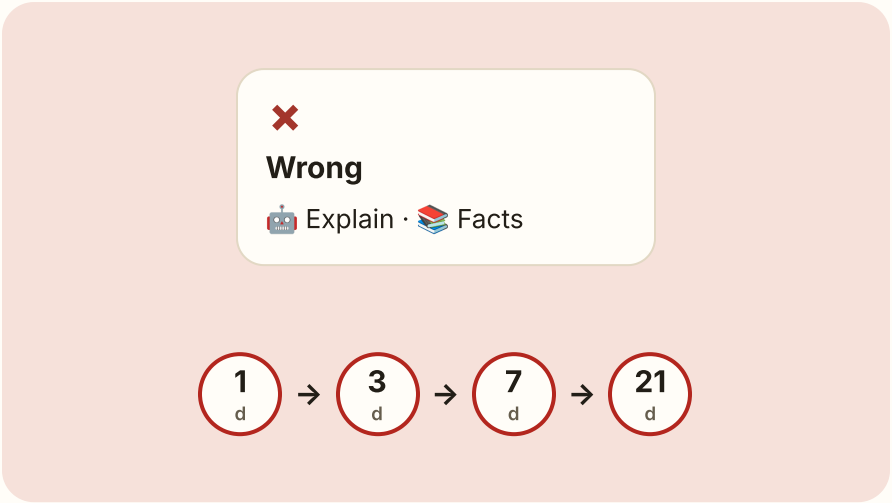

STEP 6 OF 11

In a test: act like it’s the real exam

- Keep the timer on. The screen stays awake by itself.
- ✕ Cross out options you know are wrong (or long-press an option).
- Mark 🤔 every guess, honestly. That is how the guess coach learns.
- With negative marks, guess only after crossing out at least two options.

> 💡 Tip: With PSC’s usual marking, a blank costs nothing and a wrong answer costs ⅓ mark.

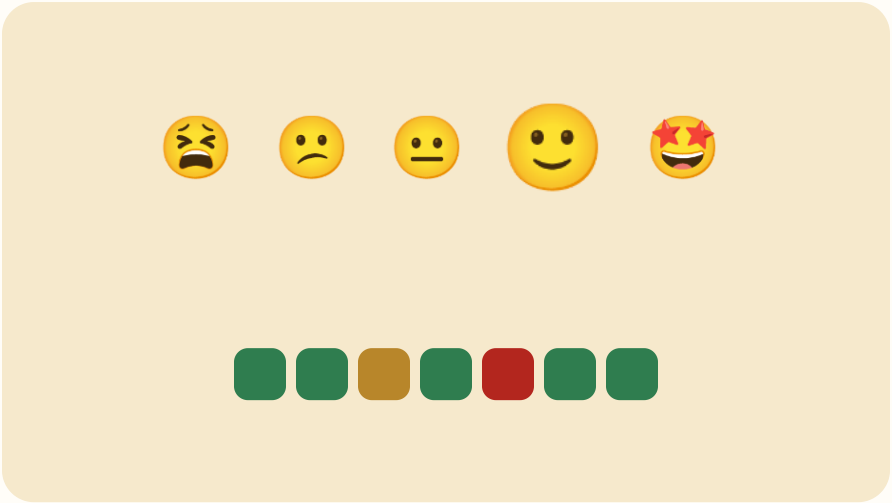

STEP 7 OF 11

After a test: mistakes are gold

- Open the result and tap Wrong.
- On each one: 🤖 Explain, 📚 Related facts or 💬 Ask AI. Keep the useful ones under the question.
- Don’t try to remember them all: Mistake review brings each one back after 1, 3, 7 and 21 days.
- Right at the 21-day check? It leaves the queue. You’ve learnt it.

> 💡 Tip: A mistake you have reviewed a few times is far less likely to cost you a mark on exam day.

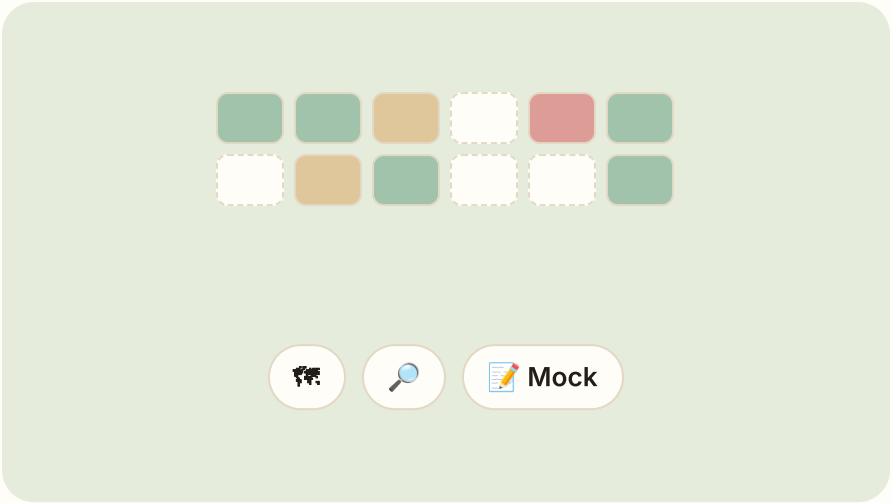

STEP 8 OF 11

Every night: review your day (3 minutes)

- Today’s checklist fills itself from your tests, ticks and timetable.
- Pick a face for the day and write one honest line.
- Green days are effective days. Aim for a green week.
- If Today asks, tap ☁ Back up to Google Drive.

> 💡 Tip: Missed the night? Fill it in next morning; it still counts.

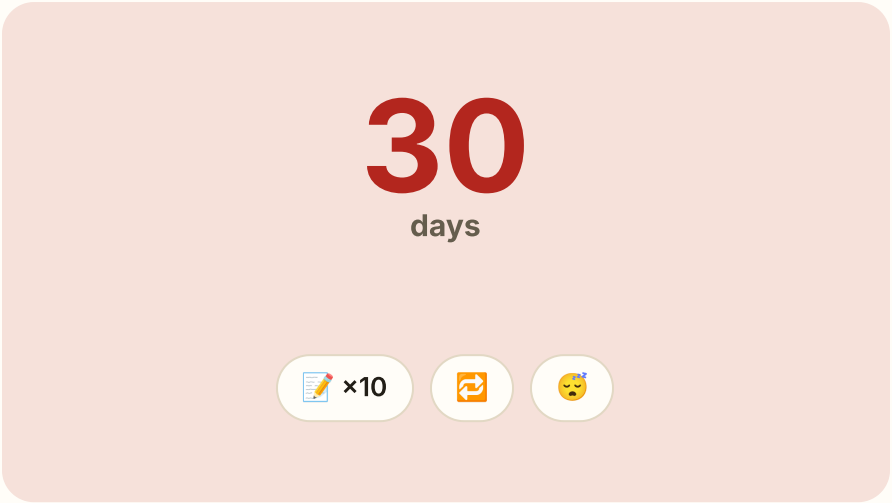

STEP 9 OF 11

Every Sunday: look at the big picture

- Open 🗺 Syllabus map. Pick 2 red (weak) and 1 grey (not yet) topic for next week.
- Put them in your timetable.
- Read 🔎 Smart insights and the weekly report in your diary.
- Take one full mock test under the timer.

> 💡 Tip: Big topics come first on the map: they bring the most marks.

STEP 10 OF 11

The last 30 days

- A full mock every 2–3 days, at the exam's real time of day.
- Mistake review every single day. Don't skip it.
- Revise weak topics; start nothing big and new in the final week.
- Sleep well the last three nights. A rested mind recalls more.

> 💡 Tip: Set the exam date so the countdown and the timetable can plan backwards.

STEP 11 OF 11

Five golden rules

- 1 · A little every day beats a lot once a week.
- 2 · Past papers first: PSC asks the same ideas again.
- 3 · Your mistakes are your best questions.
- 4 · Mark guesses honestly; skip when you can’t cross out two.
- 5 · Keep backups on: your effort is precious.

> 💡 Tip: You can do this. One calm day at a time. 🌱
